

someone who uses violent action, or threats of violent action, for political purposes.

to say that something is true or is a fact, although you cannot prove it and other people might not believe it.

to give food to a person, group, or animal.

a man who has a lot of power in a particular area of activity.

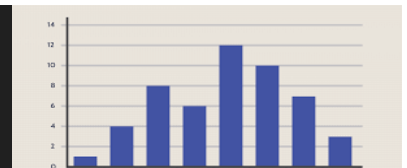

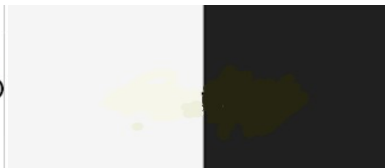

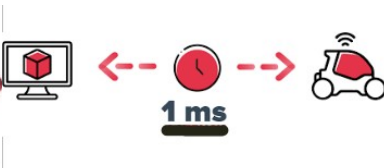

not influenced or controlled in any way by other people, events, or things.

relating or belonging to each of the separate people or things you have just mentioned.

believing that something is very important and giving a lot of time and energy to it.

the fact of happening at the same time, or the act of making things happen at the same time.

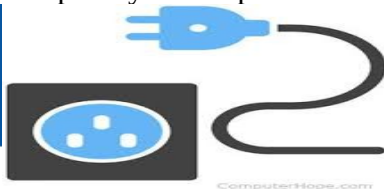

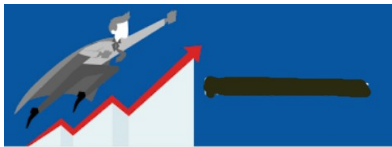

complete and including everything that is necessary.

the fact of being present but needing particular conditions to become active, obvious, or completely developed.

an obvious difference between two or more things.

a bar chart a type of graph (= drawing) that shows how many items fall within each group.

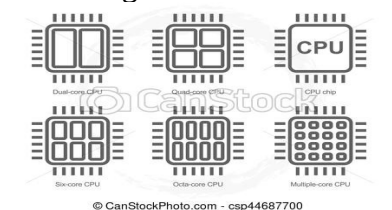

to improve the quality, amount, or strength of something.

able to exist, live, or work successfully with something or someone else.

a statement that something is wrong or not satisfactory.

willing to do what other people want you to do.

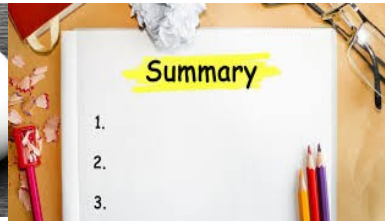

a square or rectangular outside area with buildings on all four sides, often part of the land of a college or university service.

an amount of money paid for a particular piece of work or for a particular right or service.

a short description of something that provides general information about it, but no details.

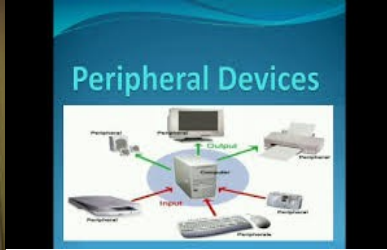

happening or existing at the same time. relating to a computer system that can be used by several people at the same time.

to mix with and join society or a group of people, often changing to suit their way of life, habits, and customs.

Something that is distinctive is easy to recognize because it gives the main facts or ideas about something.

the basic systems and services, such as transport and power supplies, that a country or organization uses in order to work effectively.

all the signs that advertise a product.

Something that is peripheral is not as important as something else. a piece of equipment, such as a printer, that can be connected to a computer.

the careful watching of a person or place, especially by the police or army, because of a crime that has happened or is expected.

the condition or fact of producing the results you want without waste, or a particular way in which this is done.